About the organisation

Through grant making, the Rockefeller Foundation (RF) works to spread the benefits of globalization to more people in more places around the world. The RF is a proactive grant provider. Only proposals that fall within the RF's field of initiatives are considered.

Type of assistance

Grants

Types of organisation receivable

The RF does not give or lend money for personal aid to individuals or, except in rare cases, provide general institutional funding, contribute to endowments, or support building or operating funds.

Priorities

The RF focuses its resources on five related fields and funds a portfolio of initiatives that work across these areas, linking and interlinking, to achieve meaningful and measurable impact. All our initiatives draw on the Foundation's commitment to nurture innovation, pioneer new fields, expand access to and distribution of resources, empower beneficiaries to cultivate and spread progress in their countries, and, ultimately, generate sustainable impact on individuals, institutions, and communities.

Target group

Poor communities, organisations

Geographic area

Developing countries, including Africa

General procedure and condition for financial contribution

Procedure steps

1. Read the descriptions of the fields in which the RF works to check if the project fits within one of the main fields area the foundation work
 2. submit the query via the only application: funding inquiry form at <http://www.rockefellerfoundation.org/funding-requests/funding-request.aspx>
- The online application is the only way in which the RF receives and respond to unsolicited proposals from people and organizations who have access to the Internet. If the RF sees a potential fit with any of its initiatives, based on their answers to standard questions, they will respond by asking to submit a full proposal. Therefore there is no use in sending a written full proposal by mail or email unless you have been invited to do so by a member of its staff in response to the query submitted.
